

The Santa Fe Archaeological Society (SFAS) celebrates its 125th year during our 2025-2026 lecture season. As over the past 125 years, SFAS continues to bring notable speakers to the neighborhood for those wishing to learn more about the past. This season we will have three lectures related to the Francisco Vazquez de Coronado Expedition into the U.S. Southwest. Our speakers will offer three different views of this important trek, one which set the stage for European settlement of the western U.S.

We will also have half-day tours of museums or sites and are exploring various possibilities for an international trip. If these lectures and events are of interest, please consider joining our chapter of the Archaeological Institute of America. Not only will you be supporting local archaeology, but also global archaeology.
